Princess Kawanakoa, hostess at one of the season's most attractive teas

THE most brilliant affair of the week was of course the tea given by the Princess Kawanakoa on Tuesday in honor of her house guests, Mrs. Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles. The affair was held at the Pienan-ton, the broad hall and spacious rooms of which afford infinite possibilities for a reception of this kind. And all of these possibilities were taken advantage of at the princess's tea—never has the Pienan-ton looked more beautiful than on this occasion in its gala dress of green and gold.

Hanging from trellises, chandeliers and beams, were branches of golden flowers, which cascaded together in an artistic extravagance of color. Upland leis—so typically a part of Hawaii—were festooned gracefully about, while huge bowls of coreopsis made splashes of gold in the hallways and laun. Palms, ferns, vines and feathery bamboo made a softening background for this riot of yellow. Tete a tete tables were placed on the laun at which delicious refreshments were served. The lifting music of Kaula's quintet kept many a toe marking time throughout the afternoon. An interesting feature which recalled the days of the monarchy was the presence of the lord high chamberlain of Queen Liliuokalani's court, who announced the guests to the hostess as they arrived. The princess received with Mrs. Stewart only. Mrs. Emmet May, who was to have been in the receiving line also, was so indisposed as to be unable to attend, to the great regret of the princess and those invited to meet her.

The princess was beautiful in her gown of black chiffon lace, made in turnover with princess lace and satin. She wore exquisite diamond ornaments and the yellow feather lei of royalty.

Mrs. Stewart wore a handsome gown of white fillet lace with touches of yellow chiffon over satin.

The gowns worn by the other guests were charming, many of them of a texture that defied the summer day. A glance at the costumes of an affair such as this one to reflect upon the days—now far distant—when a simple white lingerie dress was all-sufficient for any festivity. No malhini could point the finger of scorn at any of the frocks at Tuesday's tea.

Mrs. Frank Thompson wore a handsome gown of golden brown smartly draped, a hat of the same color finished the toilet.

Mrs. George Beckley was stunning in a three-piece suit of white charmeuse. The coat was finished at the collar and cuffs with marabou fur. Her hat was of black with handsome plumes.

Mrs. Jack Balch wore a charming frock of white chiffon over satin with both accordeon pleating and the draped effect.

Mrs. Frederick Funston was lovely in a gown of cream-colored lace over satin, with touches of black and American Beauty. Her hat was trimmed with plumes of the same rich shade of American Beauty.

Mrs. Edward Timberlake was exquisitely dressed in white lace over satin, draped and caught on the skirt with Dresden ribbon.

Mrs. Henshaw of San Francisco was stunning in taupe colored charmeuse, draped in the mode with the popular slit skirt. With this frock she wore a becoming hat of blue.

Mrs. Harry Wilder wore a beautiful gown of green satin draped with a chiffon of green and white, and trimmed with silver. A picture hat with dainty pink plumes finished the toilette.

Mrs. Archibald Campbell wore a becoming gown of white lace.

Mrs. Thomas of Leliehua was very attractive in her gown of white lace with touches of black satin. A white hat trimmed with bird of paradise feathers was caught smartly with black velvet.

Mrs. Durston, of Singapore, was in pale blue and cream satin, with diamond ornaments. She wore a picture hat trimmed with bird of paradise plumes.

Mrs. Richard Cutts was charming in a frock of ecru colored crepe with a becoming black hat beplumed with yellow feathers.

Mrs. Arthur B. Owens wore a gown of embroidered pongee, with stunning amber ornaments.

Mrs. Nelson Lansing was in sapphire blue with a hat to match.

have all been beautiful, each one as different as the same ceremony permit. Matching them all in daintiness and attraction with its own pretty note of individuality, was the wedding on Tuesday of Miss Gwendolyn Blair and Mr. Edward Dekum. The beauty of St. Andrew's sately architecture was enhanced with masses of flowers and ferns. The altar rail was banked with maidenhair fern, while the pulpit and pillars were concealed behind clumps of delicate pink and white asters. Feathery palms and bamboo made a rich green setting for their dainty loveliness. Upon the candle-lit altar, two graceful clusters of St. Joseph's lilies—that essentially bridal flower—stretched their arms to the world, emitting a sweetly languorous perfume, their tribute to the marriage rite.

The bride was given away by Mr. Clinton G. Ballentyne, having no relatives in the islands to perform that service. She was lovely in her wedding gown of soft white charmeuse. Draperies of rose point lace were caught here and there on the bodice with pearl garnitures, while the skirt, made en traine as convention demands, was slit on one side, showing an exquisite fall of the same lace. Her long veil of soft tulle was fastened in the cap effect with orange blossoms. She wore a rope of pearls, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and ferns.

Miss Louise Lucas, the maid of honor, was attired in a charming gown of pink brocade charmeuse and chiffon. It was trimmed with handsome white lace and a smart little sash caught with flowers. Her big picture hat of pink and white was fastened in the prevailing mode with black velvet streamers, ended with wee rosebuds. She wore a beautiful necklace with a pearl pendant, the gift of the bride. Her bouquet was of pink roses and tulips.

Miss Kate Gill and Miss Virginia Watson were the two dainty little bridesmaids. They wore frocks of white handkerchief linen embroidered by hand and trimmed with lace, over a pink silk slip. Wide pink sashes were knotted in very smart bows in back, while similar bows were tied on their hair. They carried long-handled French baskets filled with Cecil Breuners roses and wore pearl bars, the gift of the bride.

Mr. Dekum was attended by his brother-in-law, Mr. Jackson Randolph Myers, as best man, for whom several years ago he himself served in a similar capacity. The ushers were Mr. Arthur Heyward, Mr. Harry Hoffman, Mr. Alfred Wakefield and Mr. James Dunbar.

The groom's gift to his best man and ushers were dainty pearl stickpins. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Ault, the beautiful Episcopal ring service being used. A very charming bit of sentiment is attached to the ring, a history to bring back the romance of another generation. It had been the wedding ring of the bride's mother. The gold had been dug from her father's mine and welded with his own fingers for his southern bride. On Tuesday, with no change but the initials of the younger couple, it was used at the marriage service of his only daughter. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party motored to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Watson, where a delicious supper was served.

The guests were seated at two large tables, each beautifully decorated with flowers and tulle. At the bride's table a huge gold French basket filled with pink blush roses was used as a centerpiece. Streamers of tulle connected this with four smaller baskets of the same shape, rioting with lovely pink roses. Ferns and roses caught here and there in the tulle were scattered about the beautiful lace cloth on the table. The places of the bride and groom were marked with heavy white leis, white wedding bells, embossed with roses and with a clapper of hearts were used as place cards for the others. Similar decorations were used on the other tables and with the many pink shaded lights, the scene was one of unusual charm and daintiness. An Hawaiian quintet, caroling gay tunes and soft native melodies, added the final touch to the festivity of the occasion. The guests at supper were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Watson, Miss Genevieve Bradley, Mrs. Christina Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Randolph Myers, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Hodgins, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton G. Ballentyne, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gill, Miss Isabel Bethune of Los Angeles, Mrs. Gregg, Mr. James Dunbar, Mr. Alfred Wakefield, Miss Virginia Watson, Miss Kate Gill, Miss Louise Lucas, Mr. Arthur Heyward and Mr. Harry Hoffman.

The bride's health was proposed and responded to most happily by the groom, a number of clever speeches being made during the evening. After a merry supper, the bride and groom escaped to spend their honeymoon—anywhere, everywhere—it is not known, though they will enjoy a week on Kaula as the guest of Mr.

and Mrs. Myers. Mr. and Mrs. Dekum were the recipients of many beautiful gifts which testified ably to the host of friends they have made during their residence in Hawaii. Mrs. Dekum is from an old southern family in Georgia, and has made Honolulu her home for the past six years. Mr. Dekum comes from Portland, where he is well known. He has been connected with the Pacific Commercial Advertiser for many years, and is very prominent in local circles. At the conclusion of their honeymoon, they will live in their pretty little bungalow on Nuuanu avenue. The middle of September will see them fairly ensconced and ready to welcome their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bodge's Dance.
 The largest affair among the younger set this week was the dance at the Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bodge in honor of the latter's sister, Miss Margaret Center. As a delightful change from the customary decorations, red poinciana, regia, or red showery, was used luxuriantly, effecting a blaze of color that was most attractive and artistic. The many lights were covered with red hibiscus and male vines, while palms and hanging baskets added further touches of green. A splendid quintet played for the dances, not only the old favorites, but some new and very catchy tunes. At about eleven an appetizing spread was served—the dainty viands forming not the least part of the evening's enjoyment.

Miss Center is an island girl of unusual attractiveness. She has spent the last few years attending Miss Hamilton's school in San Francisco, and her return to Honolulu has been attended with great festivity among her friends. Monday night's dance was the first of a number of affairs that Mrs. Bodge is planning to give for her charming young sister.

Among those present were Mrs. F. G. Center, Madame Bodge, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Conrad, Miss Phoebe Carter, Miss Elizabeth Carter, Miss Eloise Wichman, Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Ruth Anderson, Miss Myrtle Schuman, Miss Jessie Kennedy, Miss Marie von Holt, Miss Hilda von Holt, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Margaret Jones, Miss Corinda Low, Miss Ruth Hyde, Miss Katherine Jones, Miss Mary O'Brien, Miss Helen Spalding, Miss Fanny Hoogs, Miss Alice Hoogs, Miss Marjory Gilman, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Rosamund Swanzy, Miss Pauline Schaefer, Miss Lucy Dimond, Miss Helen Center, Miss Margaret Center, Messers Herman von Holt, Jack Galt, Stanley Kennedy, Francis Brown, Alan Lowrey, Theodore Cooke, Watson Ballentyne, Reynold McGrew, Alexander Anderson, Lieut. Carl Hagedorn, Percy Nottage, Charles Bronham, Henshaw Carson, William Oudorkirk, Carl Schaefer, Frederick Schaefer, Charles Herbert, Walter Marshall, David Center, William Hoogs, Edmund Center and the host and hostess.

Dances This Evening.
 With three interesting dances going on this evening, the latest recluse should be drawn forth into the merry-making. Certainly everyone has an opportunity to brush the cobwebs out of his brain tonight, from Leliehua to Diamond Head. The dance at the first infantry band will play, and not only the guests at the hotel, but many of the officers and their ladies from Schofield Barracks will attend.

There is sure to be the usual comfortable dancing crowd at the Fort Shafter hop. Of course, mostly service people attend these affairs, but occasionally a civilian or so strays out, and the warmth of his welcome and degree of his pleasure is as great as if he had a row of brass buttons on his coat.

Farewell for Popular Student.
 Mr. George Cassidy, member of the 1913 graduating class at McKinley High School and who is soon to enter Cornell University, was given a farewell beach party by a number of his young friends and mates last evening at Cassidy's. A swimming party in the afternoon was followed by a picnic dinner at 7 o'clock in the hotel summer house on the beach. Even occasional bursts of rain did not detract from the merriment of the evening. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Bickerton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bailey, Miss Selma Harrison, Miss Ethel Harrison, Miss Abbie Bromley, Miss Dorothy Podmore, Miss Margaret Collins, Miss Hazel Gear, Miss Florence Cassidy, Miss Laura Cassidy, Miss Estelle Cassidy, Messrs. Campbell Crozier, Elmer Crozier, Wilfred Harrison, William Rasmussen, Alan Podmore, George Bromley, Charles Cassidy, and Mr. George Cassidy.

Mr. Cassidy leaves for the mainland on the Sierra and will take an engineering course at Cornell.

Mrs. Crabbe's Thimble Party.
 Mrs. Clarence Crabbe was the hostess at a jolly thimble party at her home on Nuuanu street last Thursday afternoon. It was in the nature of a farewell to Mrs. R. B. Reedy, who will depart for the coast on the 20th of this month and will be gone about two months visiting with friends in the coast cities.

Mrs. Reedy was the recipient of quite a number of useful and beautiful presents on this occasion. At the end of the afternoon delightful refreshments were served. Among those present were Mrs. R. B. Reedy, Mrs. C. F. Merrill, Mrs. Alexander Pratt, Mrs. R. W. Riley, Mrs. Frederick Miller, Mrs. Tom Smith, Mrs. Clara Schmidt, Mrs. Clara Auerbach and the hostess.

Col. Hawes' Luncheon.

Brigadier General Funston was the motif for an attractive luncheon on Saturday last given by Col. A. G. Hawes, a friend of long standing. The table was adorned with dozens of sunflowers, in compliment to the guest of honor who comes from Kansas, the sunflower state. The place cards were unique little souvenir books of the Pacific Club where the event took place, embodying also an elaborate menu. Col. Hawes' guests were General Frederick Funston, Judge Sanford B. Dole, Governor Walter F. Frear, Mr. George Carter, Mr. Faxon Bishop, Hon. W. O. Smith, Mr. Richard Ivers, Mr. Hawkfield, Mr. Gerrit Wilder, Danish Consul Hedeman and Mr. Francis Mills Swanzy.

Miss Sara Lucas' Tea.
 A small but delightful affair took place this afternoon when Miss Sara Lucas entertained at tea in honor of next week's bride, Miss Gemma Wadman. The hours were spent pleasantly with games and dainty needle work, not the least of its pleasures being a shower of pretty handkerchiefs and fine hosiery for the guest of honor. Delicious refreshments then followed. These invited to this charming affair were Miss Gemma Wadman, Mrs. Norman Adams, Mrs. Bruce Cartwright, Miss Marguerite Wadman, Miss Helen Spalding, Miss Myrtle Schuman, Miss Eva McCriston, Miss Isabelle McCriston, Miss Agnes Buchanan, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Eunice Pratt, Miss Jessie Kennedy and Miss Helen Gilvin.

Dance for Departing Visitors.
 Miss Marion Gibson and Mrs. Newbury of Bakersfield, California, were the guests of honor at a very pretty dance last Thursday given by Mr. Seggerman and other guests at the Hau Tree. The launls and drawing rooms were tastefully decorated with pink carnations, palms and hanging baskets. A delicious supper was served later in the evening.

Mrs. Wilder's Tea.
 Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Glade, guests in Honolulu after an absence of thirty years, were the raison d'etre of a charming tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder last Friday. It was truly a gathering of kamaalnals that assembled—old friends of the Glades when he was German consul to Hawaii. The Doles, the Judds, the Swans, the Rodicks, the Carters, the Klamms, the Hawkfields, the Bishops, the Kiebaums, the Fockes, the Castles, the Wilders, and all the many family branches thereof—each one claiming long acquaintanceship with the guests of honor. It can well be imagined that reminiscences of early Hawaii, anecdotes of Kalaikau's court were rife.

Great interest was shown in Mr. Wilder's rare hibiscus, huge bowls of which were used in the decorations. Their delicate shading from the palest peach blow pink to the deepest crimson, with their softening background of green made the arid laun Wilder home unusually attractive and beautiful.

A number of dinners will be the order of the evening tonight preceding the hop at Halekua. Not only have the guests at the hotel planned parties but many people from town have secured tables and are motoring out. Among these is the Princess Kawanakoa, who is entertaining for Mrs. Stewart and the Misses Bradley.
